Other Activity Asserted: About $800 - I uncovered a scheme in FTX that caused its users not to be able to get rich and make money! Warren Buffett said by doing this, you can beat the market and make money like him. I personally should have been making lots of money on FTX in crypto currency, but didn't because (1) they aren't on the live platform which their's is behind in their numbers, and then (2) FTX.us caused the public to place wagers against them using their bank. And this is without even being enrolled in their margin trading. I saw several opportunities to pull out my money as soon as the crypto prices began to rise on more occasions than once. And here's the thing; everytime I had been doing it on FTX, FTX forced me to bet against them using their own money. Their websites stated, "we have the right to cause you to borrow from our banks! Therefore I never actually had been betting my own money, but theirs. And I kept having to pour more money into my account to cover the losses caused by their rigging of their system. Their bank never let us know it was their money we were using when placing wagers and puts and the such. They just kept letting us bid against them using their own money! They caused me to lose money. I had invested money into their system, buying more when the prices fell and I went to sell crypto as the prices rose. They rigged it to always use the banks money, rather than our own. They made so when users bought crypto, the user would most likely wager the banks money so we'd owe their bank, rather than them owing us. I began seeing the numbers and started taking many screenshots to show the numbers. FTX also made me become subscribed to Margin Trading from the very beginning, denying me the ability on my own in their web application to enroll in it, but unable to unsubscribe from it, because I wasn't subscribed to it! Their website even stated after digging deep, "you bet against the bank using borrowed money when you subscribed to margin trading". Another article read they automatically subscribe you to it. They seemed to lock me into margin trading while I was denied even being able to subscribe to it in the first place (go figure!). They thereby forced its users to bet against them using their own bank account, and generally never the users. FTX.us caused me to place wagers against their bank. Everytime I thought I was being smart skimming winnings off the top of crypto currency rising prices, I was wrong! I'd then transfer them into a safe place which was supposed to be an 'off the market savings account' of their's on the website, then the purchasing of new tokens & coins would take place mostly on their app. But you still had to transfer only to the website account. What was happening was, I had been borrowing money from them the entire time, rather than it using my own money in my accounts. It went like this: I saw several opportunities to pull out my money as soon as the prices began to rise on more occasions than once. Warren Buffett has told people to do something quite similar. Everytime I had been doing it on FTX, FTX forced me to bid against them using their own money from their own accounts and then I'd have to pay them back. Their website stated, "we have the right to cause you to borrow from our banks". Therefore, in them doing this I never actually had been betting my own money but theirs, and I kept having to pour more money in to the purchasing of the same cryptos to be able to cover the losses that the bank never let us know it was their money we were using. When the prices fell I'd buy more. And when their market prices gained money I'd sell the crypto then deposit it into the offline account of theirs. But they rigged it to always use the banks money rather than my own, so I'd turn around having to owe FTX covered costs, rather than FTX owing us after I cashed out. I began seeing the numbers and the tiny little note at the bottom appear saying I just borrowed against the bank to cover the purchase, then started taking many screenshots. FTX also made me become subscribed to their Margin Trading that they denied me being able to subscribe to in the first place. And then of course, when trying to unsubscribe from the margin trading it'd deny me doing so, as I wasn't subscribed to it. It locked me into margin trading while I was denied being able to subscribe to it in the first place! This behavior of theirs forced me (and probably many others) to have to bet against their bank, to make even more money which seemed to lead them into bankruptcy in the long run. A video on what they were doing can be found in these places <https://youtu.be/BJOh74zRQxw> - <https://youtu.be/XgFZpfrKeSk>, and also at https://youtu.be/9v\_KuVrvyA. I ended up probably putting $800 into FTX, and then the account ending with an amount of -$186.05, and a total earned (of only) $0.13644309!
